PAXORA

OUR STORY

At the intersection of nature and design,

Paxora is where textures breathe life into spaces. Inspired by the raw elegance of the natural world and crafted for those who see interiors as an extension of their artistry, Paxora isn't just a catalogue—it's a canvas of possibilities.

From the organic allure of wood grains to the timeless depth of stone and the sleek sophistication of modern finishes, every surface in Paxora is meticulously curated for the modern décor enthusiast.

Whether you're shaping a bold statement or refining subtle elegance, our diverse range ensures that creativity finds its perfect match.

Design isn't just about aesthetics—it's about feeling, experience, and lasting impressions. With Paxora, every texture tells a story, every finish makes an impact, and every space transforms into a masterpiece.

The diagram illustrates a cross-section of a tree trunk, revealing its internal structure. The layers from the center outwards are labeled as follows:

- HEARTWOOD
- SAPWOOD
- VASCULAR CAMBIVUM
- LIVING PHLOEM
- CORK

The earliest known use of wood dates back to roughly 1.7 million years ago in the early Pleistocene era, as suggested by archaeological evidence. Early hominins, like Homo habilis, started using wood for various purposes, such as fuel and shelter.
